Need to step up war against corruption

Hope and dream of Africa Continent is being eroded by massive corruption.

Africa's resources are huge and if channeled through well thought out inclusive developments, lives of millions of the majority could change for good lives of the majority, who live below poverty line and could inspire economic growth that could surpass Asia in this century.

Look at the recent oil finds in East Africa region: Uganda, Kenya, Tanzania!

What of mineral wealth in Southern Africa region and what of the Central Africa, West Africa and North Africa?

This wonderful dream is being eaten away and paralyzed by a neurotoxic venom called corruption.

In order for us to overcome, millions of small actions must translate into a huge power of many.

Mine is to share my small actions against corruption over a period of time with sole aim of inspiring those of us who feel like giving up
